ADVISORY BUSINESS

Drawing on the decades of experience of its founders, Meristem was formed as an independently-owned wealth management firm in 2003. Meristem's mission is to work with clients who look for more from their advisors. More independence. More flexibility. More accountability.

Meristem meets families where their financial lives intersect with their personal lives. We come alongside, to advise, coordinate and execute each step with the scope and skill required to meet the complex financial needs of wealthy families.

Meristem's core service of investment management starts with a process of mutual discovery. Through wide-ranging conversations and document exchange with each client family, we work collaboratively to customize plans for each client's unique situation and goals.

In addition to the core function of investment management, client families can engage Meristem to provide advice and oversight in additional areas of their financial life. As the generational needs of each family evolve, the opportunities are great for improving a family's total financial picture and seamlessly integrating the financial aspects of their lives. These services include:

- Wealth forecasting, budgeting and cash flow management
- Tax planning and coordination with tax and accounting professionals
- Estate and wealth transfer planning and coordination with legal professionals
- Legacy planning, family meeting coordination, and charitable planning and administration
- Risk management planning and coordination with other insurance professionals in the areas of health, life, property, casualty, disability and long-term care
- Family business continuity and succession planning

The majority of Meristem is owned by Partners working in and on our business every day. These current owners include Charles Maxwell, Jr., Chairman and Chief Executive Officer; Jon Crow, Chief Operating Officer and Treasurer; James Robbins; Patrick Regan, Chief Investment Officer; Renay Henderson; Anne Novak; Andrew Ohman, Chief Compliance Officer; John Quinlan; James Sioris and Phillip Strohm. Only Charlie Maxwell owns more than 25% of Meristem. A minority interest is also held by PC3 Ventures, LLC, a group held by Michael Benson, Chairman and Chief Executive of Benson Blackburn, a wealth preservation consultancy.

As of December 31, 2019, client assets under management with Meristem were:

Client assets under discretionary management:	$1,497,847,000
Client assets under non-discretionary management:	$2,445,339,000
Total assets under management:	$3,943,186,000

The definitions of discretionary and non-discretionary management, as well as detailed information about our investment process, are covered in this brochure under “Investment Discretion” and “Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss.”

FEES AND COMPENSATION

Meristem’s compensation is fully transparent. The fees paid to Meristem will vary based upon the size and scope of the assignments for which we are hired. The details of how Meristem’s compensation is calculated and charged are clearly documented in the written Client Engagement Agreement signed with each client. We charge fees based on a percentage of assets under management, a flat annual fee, or a combination of both.

For fees based wholly or in part on a percentage of assets, Meristem uses the prior quarter-end’s asset values which would typically not be prorated for capital contributions and withdrawals made during the applicable calendar quarter. The fee will typically range from .20% to 1.00% based upon the size, nature and complexity of the client relationship. Flat annual fees typically range upwards from $15,000. While Meristem does not require clients to have a minimum level of investable assets, our minimum total annual fee is $30,000. For special circumstances the minimum fee can be negotiated.

Meristem generally bills on a quarterly basis in advance of each calendar quarter. Clients usually elect to authorize Meristem to directly debit fees from their investment accounts.

A Client Engagement Agreement may be cancelled at any time, by either party, for any reason upon receipt of written notice.

Meristem’s fees are exclusive of third-party brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses which may be incurred by a client. Clients may incur certain charges imposed by custodians, brokers, third-party asset managers and other third-parties such as: fees charged by asset managers, custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differentials, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, banking charges (if assets are held by a bank custodian), and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. Mutual funds and exchange traded funds also charge internal management fees which are disclosed in a fund's prospectus. Such charges, fees and commissions are exclusive of and in addition to Meristem's fee. Meristem does not receive any portion of these commissions, fees and costs. If a desired investment product were to have a commission or load that can be waived in favor of the client, Meristem may advocate for this on behalf of the client.

Meristem has organized private investment pools that may be recommended to our clients. These vehicles provide access to investment managers through aggregate client investments and are intended to result in lower third-party manager fees. The risks related to these pools are thoroughly outlined in the subscription and disclosure documents provided to each potential investor. Meristem charges the investment pools for reasonable expenses incurred in the ongoing accounting and administration of the pools. This expense reimbursement is equal to or less than market rates for such services.

Historically, Meristem had the ability to assist clients in the purchase of certain types of life insurance. If insurance was procured through Meristem then a commission would have been paid to Meristem and disclosed to the client. Meristem continues to service existing policies and may continue to receive commission trails for a number of years while policies are in force. In unusual circumstances, this service may include restructuring coverage, including the sale of replacement policies. In these situations a subsequent commission may be paid and would be appropriately disclosed to the client.

Certain Meristem employees deliver individualized investment accounting and administrative services to clients at or below market rates.

PERFORMANCE-BASED FEES AND SIDE-BY-SIDE MANAGEMENT

Meristem does not charge any performance-based fees (fees based on a share of capital gains or on capital appreciation of the assets of a client) or side-by-side investment strategies (simultaneous management of a mutual fund and/or a hedge fund by an advisory practice), because we believe that may create an unintentional conflict of interest with clients.

TYPES OF CLIENTS

Meristem offers services to individuals and families and their related family partnerships, trusts, estates, charitable organizations, corporations and other business entities.

METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

Meristem believes in broadly diversified investment solutions customized to reflect unique client circumstances. In partnership with our clients we take a disciplined approach to investment management, with particular attention to risk management, diversified asset allocation, manager selection, tax consequences and fee considerations. When making investment recommendations, Meristem takes into account a client's total financial picture, including assets already owned, assets not managed by Meristem, needs for liquidity, goals and risk tolerance.

Meristem develops an overall financial strategy, identifies the asset management resources ideally suited to our clients' needs, and manages the allocation of client assets among those resources. Meristem's investment team is available to work with the client advisory teams to construct asset allocation plans and recommendations customized to address each individual client situation. When asset allocation plans are finalized, money managers or passive strategies for each asset class are recommended or selected.

To provide guidance in the face of dynamic market environments, Meristem's Investment Committee leverages our network of research and analytical tools. We also use the expertise of external consulting resources to cover traditional and alternative investment strategies. This provides our foundation for manager selection and asset allocation. Investment manager selection for any asset class focuses on the three major drivers for success of any good asset manager: people, investment process and performance. When evaluating asset managers, Meristem monitors:

- Firm and product asset size and trends
- Changes to investment teams
- Adjustments made to an investment process

- Style consistency
- Performance and risk trends relative to our expectations

Meristem's client advisors discuss initial investment portfolio recommendations with the client before investing. The initial proposal includes information about each investment strategy and corresponding manager, approximate timing for making each investment, tax sensitivity and fees. Meristem believes strongly that the best outcome is achieved via a partnership with the client that is founded on a mutual understanding of Meristem's investment process. This includes thorough discussions about how and why the portfolio is constructed to meet the client's unique objectives of risk and return.

Meristem works diligently to manage risk in client portfolios, providing no assurance that an investment will provide positive performance over any specific period of time and that past performance, while important, is no guarantee of future results. During different periods, market conditions may also result in significantly different outcomes.

Listed below are specific types of risk each client should understand, as they may be applicable to unique underlying investment assets in a portfolio:

Market Risk: The market values of securities owned may decline, at times sharply and unpredictably. Market values are affected by a number of different factors, including the historical and prospective earnings of the issuer, the value of its assets, management decisions, decreased demand for an issuer's products or services, increased production costs, general economic conditions, interest rates, currency exchange rates, investor perceptions and market liquidity.

Economic Risk: Changes in economic conditions, for example, interest rates, inflation rates, political and diplomatic events and trends, tax laws and innumerable other factors, can substantially and adversely affect investments.

Asset Allocation Risk: Asset Allocation may have a more significant effect on account value when one of the heavily weighted asset classes is performing more poorly than the others. Diversification and strategic asset allocation do not assure profit or protection against loss in declining markets.

Concentrated Position Portfolio Risk: To the extent a portfolio has a significantly large position in a single security or several securities it bears more risk because it is not diversified. Changes in the value of significantly over-weighted security positions may have a much more substantial directional effect, either negative or positive, on the portfolio's performance.

Emerging Foreign Market Risk: Investments in the securities of foreign issuers may experience more rapid and extreme changes in value than funds with investments solely in securities of U.S. companies. This is because the securities markets of many foreign countries are relatively small, with a limited number of companies representing a small number of industries. Additionally, foreign securities issuers may not be subject to the same degree of regulation as U.S. issuers. Reporting, accounting and auditing standards of foreign countries differ, in some cases significantly, from U.S. standards. Also, nationalization, expropriation or confiscatory taxation, currency blockage, political changes or diplomatic developments could adversely affect investments in a foreign country.

Fixed Income Risk: Securities that provide for interest or a stream of payments to the investor have several risks including: interest rate risk, which is the chance that bond prices overall will decline because of rising interest rates; income risk, which is the chance that a strategy's income will decline because of falling interest rates; credit risk, which is the chance that a bond issuer will fail to pay interest and principal in a timely manner, or that negative perceptions of the issuer's ability to make such payments will cause the price of that bond to decline; and call risk, which is the chance that during periods of falling interest rates, issuers of callable bonds may call (repay) securities with higher coupons or interest rates before their maturity dates. The investment would then lose any price appreciation above the bond's call price and would be forced to reinvest the unanticipated proceeds at lower interest rates, resulting in a decline in the investment's income.

Alternative Investment Risk: Alternative investments, such as hedge funds, private equity and real estate create exposure to markets and investment strategies that cannot be accessed through traditional fixed income and equity markets and may result in a lack of liquidity if there is no secondary market for alternative investments. Alternatives are exposed to potential loss of all or a substantial portion of the investment due to leverage (borrowing that may involve using assets as collateral), short-selling or other more speculative investment practices. Returns may be volatile, there may be delays in tax reporting and there are typically restrictions on transferring interests.

Derivative Exposure Risk: For some clients Meristem's recommended investment strategies may include exposure to derivatives. The uses of these investment strategies carry various risks depending on the type of derivative. Examples include currency hedging, futures contracts and options to buy or sell securities at specific prices.

DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to evaluation of Meristem or the integrity of Meristem's management. Meristem has no such disclosures.

OTHER FINANCIAL INDUSTRY ACTIVITIES AND AFFILIATIONS

Meristem may engage the services of third party investment consulting or research firms to provide market analysis, economic forecast data and money manager information. Independent external research is blended with Meristem's internal investment research to assist in our selection and ongoing monitoring of money managers and asset allocation strategies. All consulting and research fees are paid directly by Meristem.

In addition, Meristem provides investment-advisory services to Sargent Management Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of Meristem, in connection with administering the various private investment funds for which Sargent acts as manager. Charles Maxwell, Chairman, CEO and Partner of Meristem; and James Robbins, Partner of Meristem; are also officers of Sargent Management Co.

Meristem Trust Company, LLC ("MTC"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Meristem, was established to leverage Meristem's trust knowledge, financial planning skills and industry experience to further serve its client families. MTC plans to engage Meristem to provide investment advisory services to its clients. Investment advisory fees are separate from and in addition to the trustee fees that would be payable to MTC. No client of MTC is required to use Meristem as an investment adviser and clients may engage the services of other providers. Similarly, no client of Meristem is required to use the services of MTC for trust services and a client may engage the services of a non-affiliated trust company for fiduciary trust services. The affiliation between the two entities is thoroughly outlined in a disclosure provided to new MTC clients.

Certain Meristem Partners and employees are separately licensed as insurance agents to support our advice given on strategies that involve insurance consideration.

CODE OF ETHICS, PARTICIPATION OR INTEREST IN CLIENT TRANSACTIONS & PERSONAL TRADING

Meristem has adopted a Code of Ethics for all supervised persons of the firm describing a high standard of business conduct and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code of Ethics includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, a prohibition of rumor mongering and restrictions on personal securities trading, among others. All Meristem personnel must annually acknowledge in writing the terms of the Code of Ethics.

Acting as a fiduciary according to the Advisors Act and the Department of Labor Fiduciary Rule, we put our clients' interests ahead of our own. We strive to serve at the highest fiduciary standard of care, including the avoidance, disclosure and management of actual or perceived conflicts of interest.

Subject to satisfying this policy and applicable laws, officers, directors and employees of Meristem may trade for their own accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchased for Meristem's clients. The Code of Ethics is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of the employees of Meristem will not interfere with:

- Making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients, and
- Implementing such decisions, while at the same time allowing employees to invest for their own accounts.

Under Meristem's Code of Ethics certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions, based upon a determination that these would materially not interfere with the best interest of Meristem's clients. Nonetheless, because the Code of Ethics in some circumstances would permit employees to invest in the same securities as clients, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by an employee. Employee trading is continually monitored under the Code of Ethics to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between Meristem and its clients.

Certain affiliated accounts may trade in the same securities with client accounts on an aggregated basis when consistent with Meristem's obligation of best execution. In such circumstances, the affiliated and client accounts will share commission costs equally and receive securities at a total average price. Meristem will retain records of the trade order (specifying each participating account) and its allocation, which will be completed prior to the entry of the aggregated order. Completed orders will be allocated as specified in the initial trade order. Partially filled orders will be allocated on a pro rata basis. Any exceptions will be documented in writing.

Meristem's clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the firm's Code of Ethics by contacting Andrew Ohman at aohman@meristemfw.com or 952.835.2577.

BROKERAGE PRACTICES

Brokerage practices reflect the process by which investment securities are purchased and sold, which may include directing where investment transactions should be executed. A relevant example of brokerage practices would be whether a trade is directed by Meristem to settle through the client's custodian or whether a trade is processed through a third-party manager. Meristem's responsibility is to monitor the policies of the parties we work with to make sure that transactions on behalf of our clients are executed in a fair and equitable manner.

For many investment recommendations made by Meristem, there is a third-party asset manager hired to make the decisions of which specific securities are to be bought or sold. In these cases it is the asset manager's responsibility to have fair trading practices and procedures and to monitor their trades for best execution.

Other investment recommendations may not involve a third-party asset manager, in which case Meristem seeks to recommend a broker who will execute transactions on terms that are overall most advantageous when compared to other available providers and their services. We consider a wide range of factors in making this selection, including:

- Capability to execute, clear, and settle trades (buy and sell securities for your account)
- Reputation, financial strength and stability
- Quality of services and commitment to protect personal and financial information
- Competitiveness of the price of those services (commission rates, margin interest rates, other fees, etc.) and willingness to negotiate the prices

For most investments other than fixed income, these transactions typically occur at the affiliated brokerage entity or division of the custodian that holds our clients' accounts. Meristem has a formal custody relationship with Schwab Advisor Services. Schwab Advisor Services™ is a division of Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (Schwab) a registered broker-dealer and a member of SIPC. As such, Schwab has the ability to transact their own brokerage when they are the custodian.

Most fixed income trading is directed by Meristem to Morgan Keegan & Co. Inc. The following features are regularly reviewed and considered in Meristem's decision to utilize a specific fixed income trading resource and broker:

- Bond portfolio analysis and management input, provided via phone conference and in quarterly portfolio reviews with particular attention to credit quality trends
- Experienced and knowledgeable market and bond discussion
- Access to fixed income markets, with continuous access to significant sources of bonds and communication with trading desks to relay specific needs
- Quality execution with more favorable institution-level pricing and commission rates

Annually, Meristem performs a formal review for best execution. Meristem's emphasis with best execution focuses on the process rather than the trade-by-trade results; in other words, Meristem identifies the trade process that we believe is most likely to maximize the value of our client portfolios.

For our clients' accounts maintained by Schwab, Schwab generally does not charge separately for custody services but is compensated by charging commissions or other fees on trades that it executes or that settle in a Schwab account. This commitment benefits clients because the overall commission rates paid are lower than they would be otherwise. In addition to commissions, Schwab charges a flat dollar amount as a "prime broker" or "trade away" fee for each trade that is executed by a different broker-dealer but where the securities bought or the funds from the securities sold are deposited (settled) into a Schwab account. These fees are in addition to the commissions or other compensation the executing broker-dealer may charge. In order to minimize these trading costs, Meristem typically recommends that Schwab execute most trades for accounts maintained at Schwab. Directed transactions with other brokers at a client's request may result in less than competitive pricing for clients.

As part of Meristem's brokerage practices, it is our policy that the firm will not participate in any security transactions with client accounts (principal or agency cross securities transactions). Meristem will also typically not cross trades between client accounts unless we deem it would be mutually beneficial to both clients and in which case the transaction would be fully disclosed to and approved by both clients.

Meristem has engaged Chicago Clearing Corporation (CCC) as a provider specializing in the research, processing and filing of securities litigation lawsuits, typically class actions related to certain individual securities that are or may have been held in client portfolios. CCC is a provider specializing in research, processing and filing of such claims. Client participation is elective and authorizes CCC to file proof of claim forms. CCC is paid through a fee deduction from paid awards only.

Meristem's brokerage practices also account for the rare circumstance where a trading error may occur in an account, for example the wrong security may be bought or sold. Meristem continually strives to prevent errors from occurring with internal procedures that include various checks and balances. However, if Meristem is responsible for any trade error, Meristem bears the corresponding transaction loss.

REVIEW OF ACCOUNTS

Meristem's client advisors monitor client accounts at least quarterly, if not monthly. More frequent monitoring may be triggered by changes with third-party asset managers; material market, economic, or political events; changes in client circumstances; substantial additions or withdrawals from a client portfolio or account; or pursuant to a negotiated agreement with the client. Formal review meetings with clients occur upon request or pursuant to a pre-determined schedule.

Meristem provides client portfolio reporting at least quarterly. These reports are delivered to clients and may include commentary and other information. Clients may also request the preparation of special reports, which would be provided by Meristem on agreement. Clients may also receive regular account reports and statements directly from broker-dealers, custodians, and third-party asset managers. (See additional information provided in "Custody.")

When appropriate to the needs of the client and at special request, Meristem will provide periodic reviews of assets not actively monitored or managed by Meristem. These assets would typically be held directly by clients or by other client selected custodians. Clients requesting this service should understand that Meristem may not have the same access to account information on these assets, and it is possible that there could be broad changes in the value of these assets between Meristem's reviews. Clients also need to realize that these assets may not receive the same level of attention given to the assets monitored by Meristem, or make special arrangements for information access to assist Meristem in monitoring these assets.

CLIENT REFERRALS AND OTHER COMPENSATION

Meristem does not participate in any client referral program with outside solicitors.

CUSTODY

Custody is a term used to describe the role of the entity that safeguards and reports on investment assets held in client accounts. These services are typically provided by brokerage firms or banks. The role of a qualified custodian is highly specialized, independently protecting each client's assets in a role that complements the advisory services of Meristem.

Meristem and our clients have existing relationships with several qualified custodians on a variety of regulatory platforms. Examples include Schwab Advisor Services (a broker-dealer platform), US Bank (a bank platform), South Dakota Trust Company (a trust company platform) and Dorsey Trust Company (a trust company platform).

No matter what custody platform is used, clients should receive at least quarterly statements directly from the custodian that holds and maintains their investment assets. Meristem urges clients to carefully review these statements and compare them to the reports provided by Meristem. In unique circumstances, Meristem reports may vary from custodial statements. These situations could include differences in accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies used for non-marketable securities.

There are instances where Meristem is deemed to have custody even though the assets are held with a qualified custodian. Specifically, Meristem has custody when (1) we have the authority to obtain possession of client funds or securities, such as being investment manager of pooled investment funds; and (2) when we have been granted additional authority or password access on a specific client account which allows us to direct a qualified custodian to withdraw assets, trade, change an account address or issue funds. In these scenarios, Meristem has additional regulatory obligations to contract with an approved public accounting firm to conduct an external annual surprise exam of these activities and provide audits of our pooled investment funds to all invested clients.

INVESTMENT DISCRETION

Whether the relationship is discretionary or non-discretionary, Meristem follows a disciplined process to monitor how changes to client portfolios are recommended and implemented. Clients may choose to grant Meristem discretionary investment authority. This means that the client and Meristem have agreed that Meristem will select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold in their accounts without first consulting the client. Granting Meristem such authority requires written direction that allows for it. When Meristem has discretion it is exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives, limitations and restrictions identified by the client. It is Meristem's internal policy that our client advisor teams would strive to inform clients in a timely manner about any investment changes, and the reasons behind the changes, when discretion has been granted.

VOTING CLIENT SECURITIES

In general, Meristem does not vote proxies for client assets under management. In the case of private family investment pools where we have been contracted to do so, Meristem votes all proxies or other beneficial interests in mutual funds prudently and solely in what Meristem believes is the best long-term economic interest of the pool clients. All proxies received by Meristem for these holdings are reviewed by a member of the investment team who votes the proxies accordingly. Private family investment pool clients may obtain a copy of the Meristem Proxy Policy, as well as information about how their securities were voted, by contacting Andrew Ohman at 952-835-2577 or aohman@meristemfw.com.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION

As a registered investment adviser, Meristem is required to provide certain financial information or disclosures about our financial condition that may impair our ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients. Meristem has no such financial condition and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.
